Meeting with Velta June 7, 1956

V. seems to be very depressed and cannot accept ~~KKK~~ and understand Ilmars behaviour. Ilmars in his letters still ask her and her son to come home. He promises that she will have all privileges and she will have a good and restful life at home. As already known Ilmars is married to a girl whom V. knows, but their marriage is not harmonic. I. writes and promises that as soon V. is willing to come home he is going to ask for divorce. V. considers that as silly, because I. has two daughters from the second marriage.. V. is very bitter about I. marriage, because she did not had an easy life too. She as a woman supported her parents (her father died recently) and her son. She could have been married if she only knew that I. had been married for such a long time. She is very discussed about that. Therefore the correspondence between them has decreased.

On question whether I. writes under pressure, she believes ~~KKKK~~ no, because I. writes too much ~~KKKKKK~~ intimate details of their private life. Under pressure that would not be necessary.. V. is very depressed and asked herself how long will she be able to take it. She answers I. letters very seldom and tries to brake it of completely.

I. seems to be well of in Riga. He now is head of a building and construction work for a district. He has a car and builds a house for himself. He praises that life in Riga is very good and it is getting better day after day and that they do not have ~~no~~ problems. He also stresses that Ints should come home and he promises Ints the best education available.

I. says that the future for him is bright. He describes Riga as a very progressing place and mentions that Ints now kan skate all the year round because Riga has an artificial ice skating place and swimming pools now.

I. mother-Madamina writes to her former husband in New York and urges him also to come home, using the same methods of good life, I. success and many pther things. It is known that I. father ~~is~~ married twice.

The most significant thing in I. letters is that he says that his coming over to the Western Worls is out of question. Madamina has also written to Velta telling her how unhappy I is, in his marriage and that they both sit up late in night discussing how to convince her to come home.
